Fund manager commentary

The strong recovery in global stock markets from mid-February tailed off in April. The price of oil continued to rise, on the other hand, although OPEC and Russia could not agree on a future investment support key. In April the global convertible bond market displayed no clear trend. Last year the USA released disappointingly few new issues, whilst Europe recorded a large volume of issues. In April the fund moved laterally, with the US unit performing best. The USA and Europe are almost equally weighted at the end of April. Asia comprises approximately 12% of the delta. We have fully exploited the fund's high yield quota at almost 15%. We have currently given the highest weighting to technology and real estate - two very different sectors.
