Fund manager commentary

The positive stock market trend continued in November, buoyed a stabilisation in macro data and quarterly figures which, overall, slightly exceeded expectations. Cyclical sectors rose much faster. In political terms the US-China trade dispute constituted the greatest danger. According to the IMF, this year alone the trade disputes had a negative impact of 0.8% on global economies, with export-orientated regions such as Europe and China being disproportionately affected. An agreement would offer both macroeconomic and price-related potential. The topic of Brexit has taken something of a back seat until the UK General Election. The fund stocked up on US convertible bonds. The fund delta rose to approx. 43 and the ESG score is at 52.
